Thou art appreciated.

Even when nobody says it. Especially then. The care you give in all those tiny moments matters more than you know.

Go forth, and be magnificent.

GO FORTH AND BE MAGNIFICENT

Blessed are the night nurses.

For they shall inherit the ward. And the laundry. And the admission that arrives precisely one minute before handover.

May thy coffee be strong.

Thou shalt take thy lunch break.

Even the Lord rested. Thou may sit down, eat thy sandwich and drink something that is not yesterday's coffee.

For self-care is not a sin. Amen.

Thou need not know everything yet.

Every brilliant nurse was once a student who had to ask twice. Keep learning. Keep asking. You belong here.

May thy confidence grow with thy skills.

GO FORTH AND BE MAGNIFICENT

Thou makest hard days easier.

When the practice is loud and the day runs late, your calm, your kindness and your humour make a difference to everyone around you.

We see thy kindness.

And lo, a working pen was found.

The staff rejoiced throughout the practice. And three minutes later the vet borrowed it and it was never seen again.

May thy pens be labelled.

Thou art not thy worst day.

Some cases stay with us. Learn, ask for support and be gentle with yourself. Your value is not measured by one outcome.

There is grace in trying again.

May thy tea remain warm.

May thou finish an entire cup without the phone ringing, the printer jamming or a Labrador eating something inadvisable.

Go in peace. And put the kettle on.
